About the seminar

This seminar is organized to discuss the concepts of inclusive development as a major objective which is debatable in post modern India. The shift paradigm of Indian social structure through sustainable development leads to radical change in respect of social, economical, educational context. India as a diversified, democratic, developing country abides with development of both inclusive and exclusive groups. As exclusive, tribe who are away from the main stream of society has been focused to improve through constitutional provisions intended to bring them in the frame work. Henceforth, the hour is to fulfill the objective of integral development of the nation.

The seminar will focus on the trends of development in tribal people as a part of developing India. This seminar will be a platform for academicians, policy makers, social scientists, researchers, bureaucrats and legal experts to express their views on tribal people and their development in contemporary society.

Sub Themes of the Seminar

- ❖ Historical perspective of tribal community
- ❖ Problems and Prospects of tribes
- ❖ Social exclusion and inclusion in India
